Front Cover: Kristen Clark, Jake Scott and Shannon Ball (also, on the Back Cover, Johnice Hall, and on the First Page, Tony Wilson) represent the variety of cultures and personalities that make Warren Central High School special.

Hey, you guys! It's me , Tony Wilson. I just wanted to talk to you about the theme f this year's yearbook; "Voices". "Voices" represents the many diverse personalities and deas here at Warren Central High School. Every individual that occupies these corridors hapes and molds the collective student body into what we are and what we will be. The tudents' voices created the material necessary to fill the pages of volume 56 that recorded ur lives from the introduction of High School to the conclusion of graduation.

Eventually, looking back, we will realize that our voices were not only spoken but ere illustrated through our actions, our attitudes, and our appearances while we attended chool at Warren Central High School, 9500 East Sixteenth Street, Indianpolis, Indiana 46229.

Over 800 copies of the yearbook were printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks at a cost to the students of $30, 5. Terry Nelson served as the Herff Jones representative and Debbie Dowell was the in-plant consultant. Printed 100 pound Bordeaux paper, each section is similar, allowing for slight variances, following close to a magazine yout form. All body copy, headlines, folios, captions and layouts were designed by the staff utilizing the pple Macintosh computers and Pagemaster and Macwrite programs.

The cover, endsheets, Haptenings section, and Performing Arts section were printed ng four color process. Editor-in-Chief, Shannon E. Ball, designed and formatted all sections th help from the individual section editors and staff. Portrait and group photos re shot by Prestige Stu- dio, while can- dids were taken by either Pres- e or staff photogra- phers.

Someday you may see my name listed along with the "Big Boys" inthe music business. If that happens we are all going to party!

School unity and spirit prevail during Homecoming

Crazy hats, pajamas and Disney logos were common sights at Warren Central during the Homecoming week of October fifth through the ninth. Senior Kim White was very excited about the Homecoming activities and exclaimed " This Homecoming was really great! The seniors blew everyone away in the spirit contests, spirit chains and hall decorations and that made it all the more fun. Even though the seniors won all of the contests, everyone still had fun participating in spirit week activities."

"The overwhelming sense of class unity really makes Homecoming one of the best events of the school year," commented senior Brian McHugh. Brian continued by saying "It's a time when the student body really gets to show off their school spirit by participating in all of the events scheduled for the week." The weeks activities contained the annual Homelycoming Queen Contest, pep rally, and Homecoming Dance. Junior Brandon Rippel replied "In my opinion, the best thing about Homecoming is the feeling that everyone belongs. During Homecoming week the school binds together and there is a total sense of school unity."By Shannon E. Ball

Homefest extends Homecoming into the community

Homefest was where we brought in the whole community to help us celebrate Homecoming. There were many students that came to the booths and ran in the races. They also helped out with serving food, painting faces for the little kids, and selling balloons. Junior Maura White explained, "I think it's important that every person in this township participate and have fun at events like this, even though they don't go to our school. Homefest is a community thing and it's nice to see that the students from here are helping out so that everyone can have a good time."

The week long activites led up up to the big football game and the dance. "I couldn't believe how many students participated and showed their spirit by dressing for spirit week. This was my first Homefest and I liked it," said junior Vanessa Hacker. By Kristen Clark

Construction alters daily life at Warren

As the year of 1992-1993 began, students noticed great changes being made to the school. "For one," replied Josh Harper, "students must make the mile hike in from the parking lot to the school since the construction area has been fenced off."

A.J. Colter, junior, replied, "I think it's coming along all right. You have to give these construction workers credit. They work from early morning until 3:00 p.m., then another bunch takes over and works until 11:00 p.m. I say it's hard work."

The main reason for the construction was to make the school larger for the incoming freshmen in the year of 1994-1995. " Although students and staff have to deal with many changes due to the construction, many can't wait to see the outcome. "The results of the construction are something to look forward to and the benefits will be widely appreciated," said junior Carlie Alexander. By Michelle Sahka

Added expenses require more students to find employment

School and extracurricular activities don't seem to be enough for many students so they take on the extra responsibility of a job. Although reasons for the added duty differ, most students enjoy working and becoming more independent. "I work because life is getting kind of expensive and I need more money to pay for it," said senior Shannon Hanson. "I have to save up for college and payments on my car so that's where most of my check goes," said Christina Rousch.

"I think it's fun working at Roller Cave because I meet a lot of new people and I get along with everyone that works there with me," explained Faustino Rico. Junior Jennifer Sovern agreed and added, "I really like my job at the mall. I like to watch all the interesting and different people."

Being employed helps students become more prepared for life outside of high school. Although sometimes it's hard to fit everything in, it's worth it. By Kambra Rodewald

Lunch time provides a welcome break in the school day

To many people, lunch is more than just going in to the cafeteria standing in line, and then eating food. Mr . Schott explains, "Lunch is orderly, peaceful, organized, social, enjoyable, and informative. It is a place where students can eat pretty good food." Sophomore Shawna Knowles said, "Lunch is fun. Sort of like a resting place where you can just joke around with your friends and not worry about work." Junior Tim Chaffins argees and added, "Lunch is a time when you can socialize with your friends, if you have any."

Many different people and personalities in one area can allow for a lot of funny moments. Mr. Schott said, "I get embarrassed when I read a birthday which is not a birthday or an obscene name is slipped in on me which I read." Junior Nikki Christopher exclaims, " Spewing Hawaiian Punch through my nose onto Amy Hoosier's tray was a funny moment." Senior Teresa Walker added her funniest moment , " I took a bite of my apple and it flipped across the table." These are just of a few funny things that go on during lunch. By Kelly Norman

Friendships reflect lifestyles of students

Through thick and thin friends at Warren were an important part of students' lives. "Friends really say a lot about the kind of person you are," said senior Yolanda Casteneda. "People can look at the people you are friends with and already know a little bit about you," said junior Brandon Rippel.

Not only did the types of friends a person chose illustrate a person's personality but the places friends went and the extracurricular activities they were involved in also reflected their personality.

In general friends were just one of the many facts of high school life--a fact of life that many of the students of Warren Central couldn't live without. Senior Matt Maddox added, "My friends are people who like me in spite of our differences." And although friends mean different things to students, one fact remains the same: friends are very much a part of one another. By Shannon E. Ball

Warrior spirit echoes through the halls

"Warren has a lot of school spirit and support from not only students but teachers and administrators," said junior Jennifer Vaughn. Warren's school spirit was demonstrated at many activities throughout the year especially during Homefest. "I could not believe the amount of students that wore black and gold on Friday during Homecoming Spirit Week," said Mrs. Wolf. "I never imagined that so many people would turn out to support our football team," said senior Matt Richards. "For the first time ever I got to go to a dance where every grade was included," said sophomore Jiffy Skiner.

School Spirit didn't end with Homefest; it had just begun. Many activities that would bring the school closer were planned and successful. "Warren's School spirit has grown throughout the year and the teachers are hoping to see Warrior spirit grow," said Sue Ludwig. By Christina Van Y

Vacations mean time for fun and relaxation for students

For most students travelling was the highlight of spring and summer breaks. The destinations and times may have been different, but the reasons were usually the same.

Although typically vacations were fun, there were others students would rather forget. Junior, Matt Scherer, said, "Most of my vacations have been pretty good but one I remember was awful. I went to Kansas City, Kansas to visit people I'd never seen before and will probably never see again. It was a really long, hot trip that I didn't see the purpose in."

Senior Daniel Wilder explained, "We usually go to Rock Island or Chicago on vacation because we have relatives who live there," "South Carolina was one of the most breathtaking sights I have ever seen in my life and I would love to live there someday," said Tim Chaffins. By Kambra Rodewald

Current fashions express students' personalities

From Cross Colours to Grunge Wear, the latest fashion styles made a big splash on the students of Warren Central. Sophomore Casey Graham says, "My favorite type of clothing is comfortable and cute because it says that I like to have fun. It expresses my personality." Fellow classman Stacie Fuqua agreed, "When I wear something like a sweat suit that means I'm tired, but when I wear something nice that means I'm happy and in a good mood. As for sophomore Steve Grimes, he says, "My style of dressing has always been ties, jeans, and silk suit jackets.

Walking through the halls of Warren Central one saw many different styles of dressing such as Karl Kani, Grunge Wear, tie-dye shirts, and combat boots. Labels were often put on the way people dress such as hip hop gear, preppie, hippie, and head banger. However, Senior David Brothers says, "The way people dress is just a way of expressing themselves." By Rukiya Bey

Winterfest breaks up winter blues

This year students and faculty enjoyed celebrating Winter Fest. Although the Seniors did not win the basketball game they kept a positive attitude through it all. Senior Matt Maddox commented, "Well the outcome was not so great, but both teams enjoyed themselves, and that is why we were there."

"The school spirit at the basketball game on Friday night was the best school spirit this school has seen since I got to Warren," commented Senior Bryan McHugh. "Winter Fest should become an annual event because the time from Christmas to Spring Break is dull and having a school activity that large really makes the time fly," added Sophomore Aimee Trumpey. By Kelly Speitel

Performing Arts

Lights, Camera, Action!

Cast members present performances enjoyable for everyone

"I really liked the children's play because the kids in the audience reacted and responded to the actors and actresses," said senior Joel Bynum.

"I saw the 'The Tricks of Scapin' and 'Doctor in Spite of Himself'. The cast did a great job performing," added sophomore Melanie Steed.

'The Tricks of Scapin' and 'Doctor in Spite of Himself' were presented on October 15th, 16th, and 17th 'The Lion, the Witch, and The Wardrobe' was presented on December 4th and 5th and both were performed at the Performing Art Center

"I saw both plays and really enjoyed myself. I think the entire cast and stage crew deserve a round of applause for their professionalism and acting abilities," replied Christina Van Y. By Kristen Clark

"Anything Goes" entertains the audience with laughs and romance

"All of the actors were exceptionally good. I enjoyed the musical very much. I love comedy," said sophomore Amy Hart.

"Anything Goes", a romantic comedy written by Cole Porter, was presented at the Performing Arts Center on March 18th, 19th, and 20th. The audience gave standing ovations for the execellent performance.

"Gabe Miller did a really good job of playing his part. He sang very well and he made me laugh," said junior Vicky Armstrong. She also added, "I liked the scenes with the whole cast. They did an excellent job of singing and dancing together."

"The musical was very entertaining and it exhibited the very best of what our school has to offer," said junior Matt McMaster. By Jennifer Stayton and Kristen Clark

Stage Crew puts in hours behind the scenes on "Anything Goes"

Teamwork and dedication went hand in hand as the Stage Crew for the musical "Anything Goes" worked to make it a success. "I especially liked the stage crew because of the people I got to work with. We worked very closely, and I met many new people as well," said junior Nikki Christopher.

Junior Jim Ballard added, "I really enjoy working with the technical part of a performance. "Anything Goes" was very interesting to work on because while I had a lot of duties, I also got the chance to have fun."

"The stage crew was very productive, and they did an excellent job of creating ship S.S. Americana," said Mr. Feit. "Although there was only one set on the stage the whole time, it took a lot of hours and time to build. The crew worked well together, and did a really good job with little training and practice." A great deal of work also went into the creation of costumes and the planning of makeup to get just the right look--but it was worth it! By Lydia Serrano

Practicing pays off for members of Orchestra

Many hours are dedicated towards perfecting the rhythm, tone quality, balance, and intonation before the satisfaction of winning at contest or recieving the applause of an audience can be achieved.

Junior Kristen Turner said, "Everyone in Orchestra knows that it is hard work, but it pays off in the end when you go to contest. Junior Tiffany Lawrence added, "I not only developed closer friendships with the Orchestra members, but saw what it would be like to travel with a professional Orchestra."

The instrumental music season was best summed up by Mr. Beckley when he said, "The members have worked very hard this year and are very good." By Colleen White

Hitting the right notes, voices project harmonic sounds

"I really liked performing and being part of the Crystalaires. Singing on stage is a really great experience," said sophomore Aimee Trumpey, member of the girls choir.

Golden Singer senior Elizabeth Williams also added, "I feel I am a leader in the class. Being a senior, the rest of the students tend to look up to you. That's really nice."

" I think that choir teaches not only about singing but also about how to perform on stage and express a certain attitude which makes our performances better," explained sophomore Warrenaire Toni Hawkins. By Kristen Clark

Showing their true colors, Color guard steps to the beat

As the Color Guard stepped to the beat of the music they came closer and closer to success. Each member worked their hardest to perfect the routine in hopes that together they would triumph in competition.

Senior Lara Twyberg said, " I dedicate my time to my routines so that I will do my best at contest, even if that means practicing them out of the normal weekly practices. Captain, Junior Kelly Peterson,added," I see many girls, including myself, spend many hours practicing one or two steps just to make sure the pattern and rhythm is perfect." Sophomore Brenda Collins said, "It's hard, but fun."

As the seasons came and went, the routines each girl learned will always be preserved in their minds. By Christina Van Y

Marching their way to success

Dedicated to perfecting the quality of their music and the perfection of their steps, Marching Band practiced day and night."The practices were long and hard, but I knew the hard work would pay off," said sophomore Stephanie Sweet.

Even though practing was hard, many students found it to be fun and satisfing. Junior, Heather Stapelton added, "I was living music and was enjoying every minute of it." "I have participated in the Marching Band for three years now and every year has been a different experience," said senior Vicky Lawless.

Combining the talent of many to make one

Combining the talent of many musicians, the Symphonic and Concert Bands worked hard to meet the high standards set for them. "Being in Concert Band took a lot of dedication, but it paid off when listening to the quality of our music," said sophomore Robbie Kleeman.

Being in Symphonic Band was a challenge for some, since it was a level higher than Concert Band. Senior Tony Wilson said, "It was great the way the Symphonic Band always rose to the challenge of the music and accomplished all the goals it set out to. We were a pretty diverse group, but through music, we got the oppurtunity to learn and play together." By Lydia Serano

ACADEMICS

It's much more than elementary!

Unusual experiences make science fun

"I really enjoyed working in the new science wing, because all the new equipment gets me in the science mood," said sophomore Smriti Banthia.

Senior Brian Sullivan agreed and added, "The new lab materials and the change in the everyday environment made class more enjoyable."

Dawn Adkins stated, "Science is kind of interesting this year because we're doing new things and not just listening to lectures."

Mr. Faint said, "I keep my students interested by staying enthusiastic myself. Having a sense of humor and using examples they (students) can relate to keeps them more alert." By Kambra Rodewald

Publications classes involve deadlines, stories and photos

Deadlines are a harsh reality for many students on the Owl or Wigwam staffs.

Senior Mynde Larsen, business manager, said, "It's hard work, but it all pays off when you see the finished product." Abraham Freeman III, Editor-in-Chief of the Owl, agreed, "Publications is hard work-though all the time put into the paper pays off when your work is shown off to hundreds of people in school." Shannon Ball, Editor-in-Chief of Wigwam, concluded, "This class requires a lot of dedication, commitment, and imagination. "

Mathmatics classes are a link to the future

In many professions math is a very important part of getting somewhere and the students of Warren Central are realizing that in their classes. "Being able to relate math to your life helps you think more logically," said sophomore Crystal Grave.

Sophomore Robbie Kleeman explained, "We'll have to use math if we go into technical fields." "I will be able to get into a good college," said junior Corey Webb.

Sophomore TiAera Anderson related math to her everyday life and said, "You'll always use numbers. Numbers relate to absolutely everything you do in your life." Mr. John Greenlee, "My most effective teaching technique was making students realize math can be fun!" By Gabrial Stark

English classes broaden students' horizons

English is viewed, by most students, as the class they look forward to the most. "Great Books was my favorite subject this year because I learned a lot that I hope will help me in college courses in the future," said junior Vicky Armstrong.

"I try to make English more interesting to students by encouraging them to expand their imaginations and explore their creativity," said Mrs. Susie Bravard.

"This year we learned how to write a good essay and all of the steps that lead into it. We wrote a paper that we will be able to use on a college application, which is very helpful," said senior Jenny Young.

Mr. Steve Comiskey explained his most effective teaching technique by stating, "I try to fool students into forgetting they are really learning. That's what kids are looking for-fun; not lectures and monotone voices." By Kambra Rodewald

Students learn about other cultures in Foreign Languages

"Most students seem to enjoy the subject and are able to realize additional benefits when they receive college credit after doing well on college placement exams," Senora Wolff said, explaining how students related to Spanish. Sophomore Sarah Sakha said, "The most important part of being in a foreign language class is that you learn how to express yourself in a different way."

"My teacher makes sure that learning is not all lectures and memorization. Films, games, and conversation helps to break up the monotony of classwork," said senior Heather Throckmorton. Junior Catherina Silas concluded, "Taking a foreign language class enhances my knowledge of many different cultures." By Gabrial Stark

Social Studies classes expand students' views of the world

Junior Christina Rousch said, "The social studies class that I'm in is very entertaining and informative. At least it keeps me awake." Junior Shannon McCrosson said, "I enjoy psychology because I like studying all the different human behaviors."

Junior Kenny Fleming said, "The most interesting thing about being in my U.S. History class is the way Mr. David Kohburn teaches. He makes class fun by adding extra information." Mr. Kohburn, who is one of the history teachers, said, "I chose to go into this field because I love history. It makes my heart go pitter patter."

Senior Jennifer Slinker said, "I think that government was very interesting because you can learn more about your American government system." So, although some of their social studies classes were difficult, the students enjoyed learning about the past and our American government. By Michael Skufca

Students work towards their future in Special Vocational classes

"Radio and Broadcasting classes gave me the chance to experience, hands-on, what takes place at a radio station," said junior Darren Shannon. "I'm just in the beginning classes right now but I am looking forward to next year when I become a disk jockey on W. E. D. M.," said sophomore Jaime Reintjes.

Mrs. Jennifer Yarbrough, teacher of Child Development said, "Child Development is the career of the future. Because of the rise of working parents, more people are putting their children in day care centers and so the demand for qualified teachers is on the rise." "Junior Chris Roeller said, "Working at the Threshold taught me how hard the 'real world' is." By Christina Van Y

Art assignments challenge students' imagination

To the students enrolled in art classes, class periods were times for expressing their thoughts creatively. Senior Larry Whitten explained, "I enjoyed art class because it was relaxing and fun to be with all my friends. I also liked the non-homework aspect." Senior Chris Bailey said, "I liked being able to listen to music and talk to my friends while I drew."

The students felt that the classes would be a stepping stone to their future. Senior Josh Hooten, who said that he had been interested in art since he could hold a pencil, said, " My goal for my future is to attend the Herron Art School."

Industrial Arts classes give students hands on training for their future

Getting a head start, students enrolled in Industrial Arts work hard to learn skills that will help them with their future plans.

"In my future I plan to go to a vocational college and the autobody class is giving me a head start in this field,"explained senior Jason Skaggs.

Unlike many classes where students sit and take notes, Industrial Arts classes gave them hands-on experience. Senior Mike Sorrentino said, "Working on my own car was my favorite project." The new equipment for the autobody class makes for a better learning atmosphere.

Mr. Randy Decker added, "Industrial Education provides students with jobs out of high school or gives them a headstart for post secondary school." By Jennifer Stayton

Physical Education classes work students' minds and bodies

"Physical education is important to keep in shape, not only physically but mentally. It keeps you thinking positively about yourself. It teaches you to do other things. It also helps you take your mind off of regular school work and try to challenge yourself in a different way," said sophomore Shasta Richardson.

Physical education to many students was an important part of their daily school schedule. They had the chance to do activities ranging from softball to swimming. "Physical education gives me the chance to have fun," said sophomore Lisa Drake.

Even though physical education was a required course towards graduation, many students would still take the class if given the choice not to. "I would take physical education even if it wasn't a required course because I enjoy doing things that require extra effort, as well as playing sports," explained junior Ashley Morris. By Kristen Clark

Home Economics is no longer just for women

Although Home Economics was an elective class, many students enjoyed taking the course because it helped them acquire skills which they could use later in life.

Heather Miller explained, "You can learn how to make foods look nice, taste better, and you can look like a pro if guests come over." Mike Miller added, " It's time for a man to become a person who can help at home with cooking and cleaning, so that a wife can go out and get a job or do anything else she wants without worrying about him."

Mrs. Alice Leax said, "I had the most fun talking with students about lab results as they ate their finished food projects each week."

Business classes train students for tomorrow's successes

" I am learning how to type so it can help me later in life, when I work with computers," said sophomore Michael Bennett. Others, like him, want to succeed in everyday life, and by taking business courses these few are one step closer to success.

"The competition is great these days for good jobs and you must have the experience and the know how to succeed. If you don't, you fail, " said senior Jeremy Trumpey, DECA member. "Competition in the world has really gotten fierce over the last five years and there is no room for error any more."

"I took business classes because I hope to be able to run my own business, " said junior Chris Chaffin. "A college degree is now necessary to succeed." Senior Josh Harper concluded, "Wall Street is a long walk from Indianapolis and I have to start somewhere; here is better than no where. " By Josh Mason

Focusing on teamwork Warriors hit the gridiron

"The whole team must be mentally focused. If only nine players are doing their job on one play instead of all eleven players, it costs us either a turnover or loss of yardage," said senior varsity player Jeff Weitekamp.

"All the players have to understand their role in relationship with the other players on the field. Each one though has to do its certain job," explained head coach Dave Shelborne. Co-captain Senior Rodney Martin said, "Everybody working together is the most important, because the whole team pays for an indidivual's mistakes."

Even though the team did not have a winning season, they learned to work together. The Warriors ended their season with a record of 2-7. By Kristen Clark

Teamwork proves to be winning goal for successful season

"There are many rewards in playing soccer besides winning--you get to become close friends with the soccer team, you learn to work with others and you get in great physical shape," said junior Kiera Kistler. Varsity member Junior Janet Andres also added, "It feels great when a play that you have been working on in practice works in a game. It gives you a great sense of an accomplishment."

Besides meeting new friends and staying in shape, soccer was a sport that encouraged team members to work together. Top scorer junior Gina Riggles said, "I believe that everybody working together is very important. Soccer is a team sport and it takes every part of a team working together to win a game."

The girls soccer team was the only team to be ranked in the top ten They had an impressive 9th ranking and a record of 12-3-1. By Kristen Clark

Dedication to soccer offers many rewards

"The best part of being on the soccer team was the friends I've made and fun times that we've had," said senior Shawn Wooden. Junior Justin Birch agreed and added, "We've always worked well together."

"Our strongest quality was that we communicated very well because we all knew each other, we're all friends," explained junior Tony Hargrove. "Some of our games were very challenging, but we tried to keep our spirits up and do our best," replied varsity captain senior Shawn Haley.

"Soccer was more of a team sport than individual so we tried to help teammates out as much as possible and not let anyone get down in the dumps over a bad move." "The guys have worked hard this year and I think it paid off. We have a lot to look forward to in future seasons," said CoachGaryRoberts. The season ended with a successful record, 10-6-1. By Kambra Rodewald

Girls Cross Country team strides ahead of the pack

"At every race there are one or more improvements from the runners. The girls have fun pushing themselves to do better at each meet," said Coach Jane Seymour. The team members were also enthusiastic about their accomplishments. "I've enjoyed the time I've spent running and improving myself, along with team," said senior Monica Hodges.

The team pushed themselves not only for the individual achievement but for the team as well. "The team has been a good experience and I hope to run next year and achieve more. I reached many goals this year and have set more goals for next year," commented junior Mignon Malicoat.

"This is my first year running on the high school team and I'm pleased with my performance even though I hope to improve more for next year," said Caroline Fulton.

Mental toughness wins the race

"Cross Country is a sport that requires mental toughness. We run when it's hot; we run when it's cold; when it's dry and when it rains. To be a good runner you have to be dedicated and commited to be the best you can be," said coach Joe Brooks. "The team has improved physically and mentally. Lots of hard work and practice made our team to be as awesome as we are," said varsity runner senior Joe Taylor.

"The team has improved tremendously," said junior William Moore. "There were several guys who have been our top runners and our season went smoothly," said sophomore Christopher Bedolla.

"The coaches can encourage, motivate, praise, scream, yell...etc. But when those moments of truth happen in your race it is out of their control. Maybe there is something to that and maybe there is not... but one thing is certain--being mentally tough and ready for the race is hard work," said Coach Dennis McNulty. By George Woldt

Tennis team works hard to improve their record

"I think tennis is more of an individual sport than team," said senior Brian McHugh. Junior Matt McMaster agreed and added, "If the team wins and I lose, I feel like I didn't play my part. If I win and the team loses, I still feel good because I did all I could." "Tennis is a fun sport. I like to win, but if I don't, I just try harder the next time," McHugh continued.

"I like being on the tennis team because besides winning I also get exercise and meet a lot of new friends," said sophomore Shawn Fleck. The three of them agreed it was hard work being on the team, but it was worth it in the end. Their season ended with everyone gaining valuable experience. By Kambra Rodewald

The golf team struggles from inexperience, but keeps positive attitudes

"This year's team rebuilt itself through the experience of the game," said Coach Janel Denny. "Our team is very new at this sport. We didn't have a lot of people coming back," said senior Kim Smartz. "The golf season was a new experience and very challenging," added junior Sarah Park, new to the team this year.

The girls gained new experiences and had fun in the process. "It was fun. It's a game to be enjoyed," explained senior Jessica Sanders. "The girls had fun and will now have some experience to return with next year," added Coach Denny.

Junior Maura White said, "The season was disappointing, but winning is not everything, as long as you feel that you did the best you could, that is what really counts." The season ended with a record of 0-13. By KellyNorman

Reaching for the touch pads, the boys worked hard

Though faced with obstacles such as youth and inexperience, the Boys' Swimming and Diving Team, through hard work and practice, managed to pull together Sophomore Rich Downs said, "I'd never dove competitively before, but I had really enjoyed it in the past." Senior John Coffin said, "I swam this year because I made a commitment my freshman year to swim all through high school."

The level of experience was a setback for the team. Junior Ken Nicholson stated, "This was my first year swimming, and it took a lot of determination and dedication." Sophomore Matt Uzina added, "Even though point-wise, we had a disappointing year, we gained a lot in terms of numbers and experience. We did our best and had fun, and that's all that really matters." By Lydia Serrano

Girls Swim team works their best

As the 1992 Girls Swim season opened, many girls realized that hardwork and dedication would be major factors in the team's success. "I have participated on the team for three years now and each year with a couple of exceptions have been successful and fulfilling," said junior Amy Gose.

"The team means a great deal to me it has taught me responsibility, team work, and sportsmanship, I will always look back on the wins and losses as life shaping events," said sophomore Jenny Coffin. "For two years I have dedicated my fall to the Girls Swim team and each winter I see the results of my hardwork," said sophomore Aimie Trumpey. "I have been practicing my diving for two years, and with much satisfaction all my hardwork has paid off," said sophomore Andea Peck.

"The year had a rough start but once the girls got going they realized what was important and that their hardwork would eventually pay off," said coach Jeff Leeke. By Christina Van Y

Pushing hard, wrestlers grab many hard-earned victories

Many members of the 1992-93 wrestling team spent long hours practicing before each match.

"This is my fourth year wrestling and each year is a new experience--this year , however, I hope to be my best year," said senior Mike Dick."I have worked hard all year to improve in my technique and style, and lately my hard work has been paying off," said junior Clint Black. "I've been wrestling for awhile now and I enjoy every minute of each match, especially when I win," said junior Ed Baxter. "Wrestling this year was a different experience," said junior Kevin Hancock. "Pinning my opponent and winning the match is a main goal I strive for," said Gary Lambrou.

Along with the teammates, the Coaches had something to say concerning the year. Coach Carmen Hurley said, "I've been coaching for many years and each team is different and enjoyable." By Chris Chaffin.

Lady Warriors struggle, but still focus on positive playing

"I wish this season had been a more successful season, but I've had fun playing and that is all that really counts," said captain, senior Jennifer Belter. "This was a learning experience. Our consistency was not very good, but we improved drastically as the season progressed," added junior Melissa Miller.

The season for the Lady Warriors was by no means a let down. "We played really good at times, but our consistency was not one of our strong points, unfortunately," commented junior Amanda Knoop.

Learning to work like team was a valuable lesson for many of the hoopsters. Even though there were not many wins to bask in, the learning experience was a great reward for the Warriors. The season ended with a record of 4-13. By Rick Hunt

Hard work and determination pays off for Warriors

The Warriors had the best start of their season since the 1970's. All season the young men of the basketball team worked hard.

"We all worked during the summer and before we never did that. We worked as a team and we all got along and cooperated," said senior Jim Wilson. "We came out every game ready to play and play as a team. We have the best shooters that have been at Warren and we worked together well,"added junior Jerome Robinson

"The coaching helped us be successful. The seniors stepped up their level of playing and leadership roles," said junior Mike McCray.

"We were determined to play good and let all the hard work pay off," junior Chris Guffin explained. The season ended with a record of 12-7. By Kristen Clark

Gymnasts cope with injuries, but still manage to finish strong

Strength, balance, and dedication were valuable qualities that the Warrior gymnasts possessed. Being a gymnast was very demanding and extremely hard. "Gymnastics is the hardest sport on your body and mind. It can be very dangerous, but rewarding. It takes many hours of hard work to put together routines. Yet, I enjoy gymnastics very much and find it challenging," said junior Kambra Rodewald, two year vetern.

Junior Alisha Boots added, "The best thing about gymnastics was placing second at a very hard regional. We were hampered with injuries all season, but still placed when it mattered the most."

"Gymnastics is like no other sport. You risk injuring yourself everytime. That hurt us this season. Most of our top gymnasts were injured seriously. But they still pulled it off at the end. We placed at sectional and regionals and did a good job," said sophomore Kim Roach. By Mike Skufca

Speed, Strength, Stamina and endurance

"Speed, strength, stamina, and endurance are some of the qualities that make a good athlete for boy's track. This year's track team definitely has those qualities, and they have shown it by setting some new top ten records in the State," said sophomore Gary Wiggington. Head Coach Dennis McNulty added, "We have State quality athletes in each of the events, although our best events would have to be the jumps (High Jump, Pole Vault, and Long Jump)."

In order to meet the challenges of all their opponents the Warriors put a lot of time into getting better during practice. The track team practices every day after school except for when they have a meet. Junior Mick Droeger explained, "Practice allows me to build on my endurance and running skills." Sophomore Jermaine Satterfield said, "Practice prepares us mentally for the challenges throughout the season. By Michael Scufca

Girls track team strives for success on the field

"We had a slow start because of injuries and a small squad. Once everyone got back up to full strength I think we did pretty well," said sophomore Sandi Gibson. The Girl's track team was coached again this season by Janel Denny and her assistant coaches were Jane Seymour, Pam Bailey, and Rodney Clark. "We had some very strong athletes this season," said Coach Denny.

Practice was an important part of any team so that the atheletes could work on the the events. Junior Jane Beck explained, "Practices helped to build endurance and strength. They also gave you a chance to work on the techniques of your event."

"I ran track because I thought it was fun and my teammates were fun to be around," commented sophomore Chiara Adair. Junior Meredith Donges said, "Our team scores were not the best, and we did not win much as a team, but everyone improved a lot as a team. Everyone worked hard to support each other." By Michael Scufca

Working together improves performance

The beginning of spring signaled a tone of anticipation for the members of the Warrior baseball team. The team began strenuous practices and motivated each other to do their best. "When you're down and need to get runs back, it really helps to pull together," said sophomore Andy Hutchinson. Senior Rodney Martin added, "When we play together, things go well, like when we played Perry and Ben Davis-- the team did great!"

Before each game the team members got into the spirit of the game. "The excitement really comes when we have a close game. The possibility of either team scoring one more run makes the game exciting," said junior DeJuan Norris. Junior Jeff Curless added, "Positive attitude was the key to winning." The season ended with a record of 14-11. By Rukiya Bey

Teamwork plays vital role for success

The Lady Warriors softball team came out taking charge. The girls worked hard to do their best. "Our team worked together to be the best; and whether we won or lost, we always kept our heads up and showed true sportsmanship," quipped junior Mechelle Castor.

"When we had a close game, we had to count on each other. Lots of practice, hard work, and dedication was what kept the team going," added sophomore Wendy Wright.

The teamwork paid off for the Lady Warriors as everyone came together to be successful in their victories. "We used teamwork to keep our balance against opponents, and we hoped that we would walk away smiling at the end," said junior Nicole Shackelford. Senior Maila Christy concluded, "We all got along and we all had one common goal and that was to do our best and come out on top." The season ended with a record of 19-4. By Rukiya Bey

Individual talents combine to make a movtivated team

Hitting a ball the size of a plum over creeks, through sand pits, and around trees took great concentration and an extreme amount of patience. But with endless practices of teeing and stroking, the impossible was accomplished. Senior Marcus Song said, "With a lot of practice and work, my scores went down which made me better than last year!" Sophomore Jason Brittain added, "Through a lot of hard work and determination, I had slowly became more consistent."

"The team improved greatly, and we had done exceptionally well with what we had," replied golf coach, Gary Jacobs. The season was very challenging going against tough opponents such as Ben Davis, North Central, and Carmel. Even though the team had many adversities,the boys improved tremendously with the talents from returning players and the skills from the beginners. Their season ended with a record of 12- 34. By Rick Hunt

Lady Warriors improve on serves and scores

The Lady Warriors improved vastly, and their experience this season played a major part. "Our play has been great. We really improved a lot and our scores were much better," said head tennis coach Gretchen Brooks.

The girls' biggest win of the season was against Perry Meridian. "We played Perry Meridian at an intense level. Even though we lost we felt really good about ourselves," said sophomore Lydia Serrano.

Their main objective was to improve. "We wanted to improve and that was all that we wanted to do. It was not about winning because the teams we played were tough. It was about improving," said senior Trisha Webb. The season ended with a record of 2-12. By Rick Hunt

Winning a spot for Nationals a highlight for the cheerleaders

"I really enjoyed cheerleading this year on a varsity squad. I thought it was a great experience. I had fun and I made a lot of new friends," said sophomore varsity cheerleader, Amy Edwards.

"This year we had one big squad consisting of 16 girls and 5 guys. It was an advantage because we could then more be competitive at competitions," said Malia Christy.

Long hours of practice paid off for the squad. They were given a spot at Nationals in Texas for their excellence in previous competitions, but unfortunately they could not go because of finances. But they came out every football and basketball game ready to fire up the crowd and lead the fans into a crazy frenzy. By Kristen Clark

Administrators enjoy working for the community

Though making important decisions that affect the community can sometimes be stressful, administrators say the results are worth the effort, and they enjoy their work. "Warren Township is one of the finest public school systems in the Midwest. It's continually growing and provides a wide array of course offerings for students," said David Geise.

Phil Douglas said, "I like my job because of the variety. Every week there's something different, and things are always changing. I like the community of Warren and I enjoy serving it."

"What I really like about my work are the people," said Craig Hintz. "The district begins with the people and they are the community's greatest asset. They help support the activities in our schools. We, the administrators, are working together to continue improving programs and opportunities for students, parents, teachers, and the community." By Lydia Serrano and Jennifer Stayton

Student Council Spirit

The school spirit of students throughout the year shined through the many school activities sponsored by Student Council. "I loved going to all the dances,"said sophomore Melanie Steed. "Bingo night was a thrill-- it had everything, food, friends, and prizes," said junior Kiera Kissler. "Prom was a great night. I enjoyed every moment, and will treasure all my memories," said senior Tricia Webb, "We earned a substantial amount of money for the cause, but what was also important was the fun the people had and the way the donators appreciated it," said senior Matt Maddox. "When I went to Atrium Village I didn't know what to expect, but I'm glad I went and hopefully I will go back next year,"said ChristinaVanY.

"Student Council was very productive this year and I hope next year will be as successful," said president senior Heidi Phipps. By Christina Van Y

Community Service Clubs

"Just Say No Club had a successful year because club members had a good time together and the trips to the elementary were worth all the time and energy put into them," said junior Kiera Kistler.

"I'm extremely proud of the sixty high school students who volunteered eight hours of Saturday time to train for the program," said Just Say No club sponsor Mrs. Janis Gaerte.

Also given the opportunity to work with township elementary students were Project Set participants. "Through the club's activities many Project Set members came to realize that their future lies in working with young people and influencing the students of tomorrow," said sponsor Mrs. Beth Wolfe. Club member senior Jennifer Belter said, "Project set helped me decide that I want to teach. I really enjoyed working with the sixth graders."

"Close-Up was a good opportunity because it gave me a chance to learn about government and meet my state representatives," said junior Brian Terrell.

"The best thing about Close-Up, in my opinion, is that teachers and students see their government in action on a daily basis," said Close-Up club sponsor Mr. Tom Armstrong.

"For the first year with a new sponsor, Key Club was able to accomplish many community service projects and still have fun," said club president junior Heather Stapleton. By Heather Scott

Leadership Clubs

It is important for us to have respectable leaders. It is not easy to develop leadership skills. That is why we had various clubs, all of which help bring out the best in all of us.

Junior Greg Hewitt said, "It is important to everyone to have a good leader to follow, especially the younger generations, because they are the future. If they do not have good leaders, then our society will get worse. The Honor Society gives us an opportunity to be leaders for the kids who need someone to look up to and follow." By Stephanie Ehrgott

Business Clubs

Business clubs give students a whole range of opportunities. "I liked being DECA because it offered an opportunity to go out of town and stay in a hotel one weekend. While we were there we learnt about different aspects of business." said junior Christa Pfeiffer. Junior Jennifer Moncel also felt that DECA offered many opportunities, "We do lots of fun stuff in DECA, like have dances and pizza parties. It's also a good way to meet new people." Other clubs, such as BPA, also had a chance to participate in competition outside of Indiana. Junior Jennifer Bupp said,"The most memorable part of being in BPA was when we went to San Antonio this year. We got to visit the IMAX museum, and the hotel we stayed in was right across from the Alamo." During this competition, senior Michelle Speck won first place in office assisting and senior Errin Gray won eighth place in employment skills.

While business clubs can offer many opportunities, they also offer a chance to learn various skills. "I like working with computers, and it was a easy class, that's why I got involved with DPL," said senior Alex Council. Sophomore Lasheena Garrison, CPA student of the year, stated,"One of the most important things we learn in CPA is how to control yourself, and get along better with others."

VICA Clubs

"This clas and the VICA organization make a more creative way for us to learn instead of so much book work. We have a lot more hands-on learning. Now we work more on computers and fix our own electronic equipment," junior Dennis Skeens said.

Senior Steve Jennings said, "This class prepares me to enter the work force with a highly needed skill. I have made two rool shelves for Filler Rods and a portable welding unit for the class. I didn't think I would ever be doing stuff [like this], but it's fun. I think the class is cool simply because of the challenge it takes. Senior Kevin Montgomery said, "I have become more respnsible and more respectful towards welders. It's a good class to take."

Auto Mechanics is another interesting part of the VICA Club. "The class is fun to work in. I think the teacher [Mr. Watkins] plays a big part in how interesting the class is and he is very interesting," said junior Steve Miller. "I have done a lot of neat things. I have overhaulled a motor and that was quite an experience."

"The great thing about the diesel mechanics section of VICA is that the students learn more and really improve their knowledge without even realizing it," said sponsor Mr. Ken Reese. "VICA offers scholarships, tools, and help in finding a job as well as hands—on trainig," added junior Chris Hall. "I like a good challenge, and the competitions that JVICA has have really given me a chance to test myself and better my performance. At the contests we find problems in teal trucks and try to get them fixed, said junior Brandon Wooley. By Darcy Cross and Mel Montgomery

Academic Clubs

Sophomore member of Readers Theater Vanessa Brown said, "Readers Theater was a good chance to get away from the regular classroom setting and relax—to do something you enjoy." Shanna Blackburn, junior Readers Theater member, said, "Readers Theater can really build up your self-esteem—it teaches you responsibility. " Readers Theater sponsor Ms. Susan Bravard said, "Readers Theater had our busiest, most productive year ever. We performed for over 15,000 people."

Speech and Debate team member junior Bula Barua commented, "When you walk into a room filled with silence, with a speech in your head—something clicks in your mind." Beth Sibert, senior member of the Brain Game Team said, "I've been on the Brain Game Team for three years, but this year has been the most successful. We all had certain sections of knowledge, and we came together well." Senior member Maureen D'Orso agreed, saying, "We had a really great year because we finally started winning."

Science Olympiad and Science Club sponsor, Ms. Linda Dearth said, "This year was an outstanding one. We plan to have an even better one next year." Senior Science Club member Jessica Sanders added, "We did a lot more activities and had a lot more involvement with its' members this year." By Joe Alexander

Career Clubs

Careers are about more than then the 9 to 5 grind. It's about the people and activities experienced along the way. Senior Noel Boonsaid, "Being a Thespian is an honor for me."

"Being on the Radio Club gives me experiences to pursue my career later on," said Jennifer Durham, junior. "I want to be a radio broadcaster and it gives me a head start. I really enjoy it and hope to continue in improving on my skills."

Walker Career Center offered clubs that focused on more occupational goals. "I got a lot out of it," said senior Carl Scaggs. "FFA taught me a lot about the outside and how to make bad places look good." Senior Amy Fisher, who was in the Dental Assistants Club, said, "It was a lot of work, but I'm glad I did it. It was worth it." By Darren Shannon

Sport Clubs

There are more ways than one to be part of a sports team. Junior Kelly Norman, GTO/Boys Track, said, "This is a great way to be right there where the action is and to feel as if you are doing something worthwhile for the team." Sophomore swim maid Jenny Coffin added, "You might have to put up with some hassles every now and then, but overall, it's more fun than work." Polar Bear Club members say they joined in order to stay in shape all year round. FCA members had a slightly different purpose. They feel that attitude is very important in sports as in the rest of life, so they get together to make sure they they stay on the right track mentally as well as physically. By Lydia Syrrano

Publication Clubs

It's nine o' clock at night and all the lights in the school are off except for one, inthe publications room. Students hurry everywhere to finish that final deadline and try to hold on to their last piece of sanity. Junior Heather Scott described it best by saying, "The production night is a never ending quest to do the impossible, but when we all work together we manage to get things done."

"It teaches a lot about responsibility and how to stick with a job until it is completed," said senior Jerrod Ehrgott.

Responsibility, pride, and leadership are all qualities that are present in a great staff. "I love to see the finished product, knowing all the time and hard work that went into it, because it makes me proud to know I was a part of it!" said junior Tosha Russell. By Janet Andres

Graduation becomes a time of mixed emotions

Tears of joy and of sadness streamed down the cheeks of many of the graduates on commencement night, May 27th. Mixed feelings abounded as everyone realized that they were about to take one of the biggest steps of their lives. "I may never see many of my friends again after this summer because everyone is going in different directions," said Shannon Craver, adding "Some are going off to college while others are moving away."

"Graduation is a time when you really step back and look to see where you have been and where you are headed. It really is a scary time," commented Alex Council. James Hoffman said "Even though we are all growing up and going different ways, we will always have one thing in common; Warren Central and the class of 1993." By Shannon E. Ball

Romance, dinner, and dancing make special Prom night memories

As the most anticipated night of the year came to a close, Prom 1993 was remembered with feelings of excitement, romance, and emotion. Junior Kay Sengphakdy said, "Prom was different because it was the most special dance of the year and it was unlike other school dances. I had been looking forward to it for a long time, and I wasn't disappointed."

Preparations for Prom started a long time before the actual dance. Junior Diane Gaskins said, "I'd been looking for my prom dress quite awhile before I finally found it. Then there were a lot of last-minute things, such as accessories, hair, and nails." Junior Jon Ferguson added, "The costs of Prom certainly added up, but in the end, it was worth it."

Junior Sharif Horton said, " I really liked the atmosphere at Prom. Everyone was looking 'sharp' and seemed to be having a good time." "We had a great time and it was a very special evening. I'll always remember Prom night," said Theresa Walker. By Lydia Serrano

Senior dinner provides time for students to reminiscence

" I liked being with my friends, but the most memorable moment of the dinner was the senior video," commented Sharon Hinds. The Madrigals' and the Unity Choir's singing were among the highlights of the evening. For dinner, fried chicken was served along with rolls, green beans, potatoes, and various other dishes. "The party was only around two hours long but it will stay in our minds and hearts forever," said Elizabeth Williams.

As a student Mrs.Widgren attended an event similar to the senior dinner party and was quite surprised when she came here to teach and found out that Warren no longer hosted an event like this. So she and Mrs. Ludwig revived the traditional dinner and she has been enjoying it ever since. This year Mrs. Widgren had help from Mr. Derrick, Harry Wiseman, Jim Keaton and students from the class of 1993.

"The students had a wonderful time. I only wish that more students would have joined in," concluded Mrs. Widgren. By Shelly Wyant

To my brother Jeremy:

Do you remember all the trips to the zoo,
and the Children's Museum too?
All the fights we've been through,
all the funny things you do -
That have made me laugh
through and through.
Thanks for always bein' there - always without a care.
But now its time for you to go
Down those streets you don't know
For now your senior year has gone and past
And the bountries to your future are vast.
You are on the other side of the street and new people you will meet.
-Remember me for I love you too!

— Your sister,
Aimee

Go for the moon, Josh!
We're so proud of you!
Love, Mom, Dad, & Grandpa

Mark

Thank you for making my senior year so special! I will never forget the time we spent together, and the happiness you brought to me.

Love,
Colleen

Daughter, Heidi I Believe in You and in Your Dreams

Daughter, you are beautiful;
you fill me with joy.
Within you is an ideal,
a voice of youth,
and a promise of achievement
still to come.
Within your hands
are special gifts and talents.
Within your mind is the source of your dreams...
Within you, my daughter,
is the strength to carry
your dreams to completion.
within your heart is the desire to meet the world on your own terms, and I never doubt that you will.
Within you rest my hopes and dreams.
You are strong; you are wise;
you have a dream.
You have a spirit and confidence
I never knew; you have faith.
You are your own person,
and you always will be.
Within you, Daughter,
is something so precious and rare.
Within you is the promise of the future,
and I believe in you.
Love, Mom & Dad

Amy Ginther

Seems like only yesterday
That she was just a baby,
And now I've found I've turned around,
And she's a bright young lady.

Although her friends will call her Amy,
Her diploma says Amy Marie,
And some just know her by her smile,
But I fondly call her Breeze.

As graduation time is here,
And joy and happiness are had,
There will be one with a tear in his eye
Then, of course, it will be me, her DAD.
Dan Ginther

Elaine,

You have warmed my heart and made my life so happy. My life just couldn't be complete without you. That's why I hope nothing ever comes between us. I'll always be here for you.

Love, Brian

The last four years have come and gone
at an inconsistant pace
While Time in classes Dragged along
The Weeks just seemed to Race.

Now all the work and all the fun
is merely History
The things you Lost and Things you won are in your memory.

Jennifer Sutton

It's too bad that it's ended
'cause it really has been Great
But even though you'll miss it it's time to Graduate

You surely know we love you, lass and we're proud as we can be To cheer you and your Senior class of nineteen ninety-three

Dear Jason P.

Thanks for the special memories. They will stay with me forever.

Love, Jan

Heather Borden, Nicole McClain, Justin Hayes, Scott Clements, Bill Oholorogg

You are the greatest friends a girl could have. I will miss our lunches together. I hope you get everything you want out of life. Good luck! I will miss you!

Love, Kristie

Jenny,

Have we told you lately how proud we are of you? We have only one wish. May all your dreams come true.
Love always,
Dad, Mom,
Alison, & David

Noemi Arce,

The time has come for us to part.
I wish you the very best
on Graduation Day,
and in the future.
We've been through some good times, and through some bad times

I'll miss you Sis,
But I'll be graduating soon.

Love, your Sis, Tahina Arce

Smoose,

You're a HIT with us.
We're proud of you!

Love,
Dad
&
Diane

Valerie,

There are no words
to express a mother's love
for her daughter.

May god bless you and watch
over you as you go out into the world.

Love Always,
Mom

Warren Soccer Booster Club

Congratulations, Matt

We are so proud of all your accomplishments! We wish you a happy and bright future and hope all your dreams are fulfilled. Always be the best you can be.

Love, Mom, Dad, & Josh

Ricardo

Thanks for making my year so special. I'll miss you a lot

Love, Lydia

Kirk, Brian & Matt

Just wanted to say thanks for making my junior year great and helping me keep my head on straight. Thanks to Kirk for a great JSN year; Matt for the compliments, & Brian for all the advice and for listening. Have a great time in college, guys--You'll all do great! Good luck always.

Love, Kiera

Brian,

Wishing you always–
Love to surround you,
warm memories
to cheer you,
good fortune
to walk beside you,
and happiness to fill your heart.

Love, Mom & Dad

For Mynde

Whose balloon never lands--just crashes; Who is going to deafen us with the silence in the house after she leaves for Indiana State this fall--And who has taken us on the most incredible, enjoyable ride through the past 18 years of her life--It's been pure pleasure...thank you for being.

Love,
Mom & Dad

This book was such an unusual project from beginning to end that I thought you ought to hear about it. It began as an idea in the mind of Editor-in-Chief, Shannon E. Ball, during the summer of '92. When she presented her concept of making the book look like a magazine as much as possible (with ELLE as their example), the staff loved it and then the ideas just snowballed.

The cover was an exciting project, as the staff voted on the types of students they wanted represented, and then choose the actual models for it. The actual shoot was hilarious, as Prestige Photographer Mike Merrill got his first introduction to the students' strange sense of humor—and a stray kitten kept trying to get into the shot. The back cover and the endsheets were shot on one evening out at the studio.

It was fun watching Prestige representative Kevin Colvin tie rocks to all the balloons that would surround Johnice Hall. Even funnier yet, though, was the day in November when Prestige opened up its studio on a Saturday just to shoot those special photos for the Album section of our yearbook. Kevin Colvin was there, and Tony Teter was the photographer. They decided to get overly creative and try for a wind-machine type effect in one of the photos...and let's just say it didn't work out! There were those frustrating moments, as well. Album section editor, Kambra Rodewald, and her assistant, Gabrial Stark, could tell you a few stories about that—everyone had to pitch in to get rid of that monster! So could our Index editor, Shelly Wyant (and her helper, Kelly Speitel); our Club section editor, Kelly Norman; and our Co-Editors for the sports section, Kristen Clark & Christina Van Y.

Gabriel made the Academics section look like a breeze (with help from her assistant, Kambra) and I think George Woldt took almost all the photos for it, though our Photo editor, Jerrod Ehrgott, might disagree. Jerrod was busy taking most of the photos for the sports section and Student Life. Colleen White didn't struggle too much with Sequoya—though she did have to come in for a day or two in the summer.

Jenny Stayton & Lydia Serrano made a good team as they tackled the Central Office spread, and even came in an extra day to finish up the Club and Index sections when the section editors couldn't make it in. Rukiya Bey was always quick to offer a helping hand anywhere, and Editor Shannon Ball snagged her to work on any project at hand. Rick Hunt, with help from Mike Skufca, put together most of the scoreboards for the sports section, and they each wrote some sports stories as well. Our graphics editor, Kevin VanNote, was the genius behind all of those photo collages for the division pages, and he didn't complain too much about all the time it took. Shannon finished the Closing section in a day, showing one of the reasons why she was Editor-in Chief. The Business staff was the strength behind the scenes, running the yearbook sales and designing the senior ads. Mynde Larsen started out the year as Business Manager, then graduated at mid-term, leaving us all in a panic. Clark Reeves took over briefly after that, then handed the position over to Tammie Wheeler, who carried us through the rest of the year—with a lot of help from Jenny Coffin, who was in training to lead the Business staff next year.

Our yearbook representative, Terry Nelson never knew what to expect when she walked in—except that she was sure food would be there or be on the way. We did manage to take a few moments out to have fun (especially at Kambra's birthday party!) and we hope that some of that fun found its way into the book. You may find that we have captured your voice in here somewhere, so look for that—and we hope you enjoy it! By Gayle J. Harmon, advisor

Friends

Friends are for loving.

Friends are for hugging.

Friends are there when you need them.

Friends are there to confide in.

Friends don't lie to you.

Friends don't hide things from you.

My friend is you,

because you're so true.

Hoping, Wishing, Dreaming

Sitting here thinking of all the things we had Hoping, wishing, dreaming as time passes by.
Loving you won't bring you back, so what else can I do?
Hoping, wishing dreaming that I was there with you.
I must avoid you now because the pain has become too great.
My heart can't go on breaking, I'm sorry for your pain.
This hurt in my chest I know will ease with time,
but I'll still be here waiting,
Hoping, dreaming, wishing that you were mine.

A New Beginning

I wish that the world could have a new beginning.
So that we could fix all the things wrong with it--
Pollution, war, and hate.
I wish we could all find a better fate.
My parents say that it's up to the future generations.
To find new creations,
that could help the problems we face now;
Something that might help
the human race not tumble down,
Something that could fill
the hole up above,
Something that could
spread love,
Something that could make a better tomorrow,
Something that could make a new beginning.

Love on a Warm Summer Evening

Deep Eyes encase secrets that may never be told,
Tender touches exchange on a warm summer evening.
Soft kisses endure hours, words fought with meaning.
Aims sure and steady, encircle and hold.

Searching looks implore that the truth be told,
Shadows deep within his eyes are fleeting,
A smile on brazen lips is reasurring that which my soul feeds on, thrives on is bold.

Love exist in a touch, a look, a kiss,
As quickly as the days pass, love fades,
My heart bids farewell to the previous bliss.

My heart ache of the past that I so miss,
My soul weeps desperately as farewell it bades,
I am forever altered by what I miss.

Henry V: His Own Man

By Richard Archer

Henry V was seen very differently by people in his life. His father was ashamed of him, the Dauphin scoffed at him, King Charles of France took precaution in dealing with him, and Falstaff loved his youthful, entertaining company.

To begin, before Prince Hal became King he lived a wild, carefree lifestyle. He spent his time with hooligans and engaged in questionable activities. His close friend and cohort Falstaff loved him for his crazy ways. In contrast, Henry s father was deeply disturbed by his behavior. He knew that one day Hal would become King and he wanted somebody more respectable than his son to fill that position. He wished Hal were more like Hotspur, the brave and honorable son of the duke of Northumberland. He was embarrassed by his seemingly useless son.

The Dauphin of France also thought Hal was a screw-up . In contempt of Hal, he sent him a gift of tennis balls to utilize in his gaming ways. The Dauphin was totally unaware that Henry V s uncle, King Charles, had learned his lesson that Henry and his family were an everlasting deep threat to France and he did not listen to the detractions of Henry by the Dauphin. Even if he were wrong, he felt it wisest to overestimate his enemy.

All in all, the contrasting lifestyles Henry V led before and after he became King of England drew both praise and criticism. Although his father died in battle ashamed of him, Henry became a great King. The Dauphin was sadly mistaken by called Henry weak because it took great resolve and strength for Henry to reject his childhood friend Falstaff in the line of Kingship. Charles of France realized the potential danger in any king from Henry s bloodline. The victory of the English under Henry V at Agincourt proved him correct.

Each of these views were justifiable at that time and at the place. But they all had one thing in common: none made Henry who he really was. The inner strength he found on the throne and on the battlefield forged the image. He was his own man.

Masquerade Ballroom

This life is but a masquerade
Dancing to a familiar tune
You dance with storms of indifference
And hypocrisy is the mask
behind which you hide your fears
When you think you've memorized its fearful pattern
reality knocks your thoughts out of place
You wear your mask
Everyone is fooled
Your thoughts can never escape locked behind the prison doors of your mind
You think you've found yourself
Only to learn what you've found is merely a mirage
Of who you thought you once wanted to be

Misty notions fill my head
Death becomes my dreams
I wish only confusion to cease existence

For consolation I look to the windows of my soul
It's raining outside
In this shell it's desolate,
deserted, and empty
No one seems to find comfort here
You wear your smile
And speak as if there's actually substance to your thoughts Peers tell you "you're dancing too close to the storm"

In the end you find your life's but an empty shadow
Filled with lonely goodbyes

My Special Friend

The Lord brings special people into our lives for special reasons.
People say that miracles don't happen anymore,
but I know they do.
I know because I have you.

You gave me strength and courage
No other one could give.
You filled my life with laughter,
And made we want to live.

You wiped my tears,
And felt my pains.
You smiled with me,
And rejoiced my gains.

My life would be so different
Had I not found you.
I would be so lonely,
Isolated and blue.

I thank my Lord in Heaven above
That he gave me you that I could love.

Her words, her beauty...Never saw her face

Was almost deafening,
the way her words came piercing through the room
as I raised my head
to meet her directly,
exactly
on the other side

The air was still
that carried her words to me.

Still there
each syllable met me
with a smile...

And on went
the blackened still air;
On went
the fiery prose
came crashing down on me
in rows.

Neatly aligned and greeting
with the kind sort of voice,

Just the kind she always had and just one more time
her slippery sounds
came sliding into me
from the other end.

Got to love her beauty
to no end,
since a beauty like hers
is just the right kind to inspire the day to begin.

See the sun rise,
just the way it always has

And what for now would you suppose the reasons for its rose colored loft
has shattered
all across the sky
with shards of sunlight
broke and scattered
'bout the heavens.

Jagged sharp
these fresh, young protrusions
greet the morning

Alive.

Jagged razors cut
-the wet morn' sky-
have caused its adoring light to shine
and bleed
all over the day.

Neither Bars nor Bullets

In the south a King was born
The son of slaves, in a land forlorn

He taught his flock to have pride
And begged his people not to hide.

He had a Dream of freedom and peace
In a land where hatred had yet to cease.

He fought a war that was not violent
And told his race, "We cannot be silent."

He preached of love and brotherhood
But racist ears never understood.

He hoped to set a nation free.
He marched the streets for you and me.

When society's attempts to stop him failed
They arrested him and he was jailed.

His words grew sharper and cut like a knife
So an assassin's bullet ended his life.

But neither bars nor bullets could shatter his dreams.
Those were ignorant attempts to me it seems.

The King's life ended on an April day.
But his Dream lives on anyway.

Up in heaven he still looks down
And sees men cheated cause their skin is brown.

Daddy

By Danielle Hurt, senior

Carmen sat alone in the dark, empty room. She held her chin in her hands, and her deep blue eyes stared into the lonely space before her. Her long, wavy brown hair fell clumsily upon her forehead. Her shirt was baggy and pulled over her knees, and her jeans were worn and frayed at the seams. The socks that she wore were slumped to her ankles and almost falling off of her slender feet. So many things had happened in this very room that she now sat in -most of them bad. The end had come. Her thoughts raced back to that moment she stepped foot into this room for the very first time.

Five years old. The window had bright yellow curtains that enhanced the sun's glow, and the walls were filled with prints of Holly Hobby. Now the window was stripped of life, and the windows were a dull grey. Five years old. The small ragged girl clung to her equally ragged Holly Hobby doll. Daddy came in to help her with her belongings. Daddy was mad. Daddy didn't like her favorite doll. Holly Hobby was snatched out of her arms and stripped off the wall in a rage of fury. His face was angered and red. "Daddy, daddy, No!" She cried. Her small frail voice was unheard by big, strong Daddy. Carmen shuddered in fear, and looked up in the bare, dark room. She was relieved. "He's not here now." Carmen sighed a sigh of relief, relaxed, then continued her lonely stare.

Six years old. Only one wall of the Holly Hobby print remained. Her bedspread was pink, just as Daddy liked it. Her hair was braided into long strands with bows on the ends. The visit to the dentist was a disaster because of her cavity. She began to weep on her pink pillow. Daddy came in. Daddy was mad. He slammed the door shut and put on his angry face. He bent down as if to comfort her, then in his rage slapped the tiny girl across her delicate face. She screamed, "No! Daddy! No!" She shrieked a haunted shriek at the memories that lurked in this dark room. Then, she again realized that it was not real anymore. It seemed that every day she had done something wrong, and everyday she was punished. Being in this room, for the very last time, brought forth too many horrible recollections for her. Her corrupted and abused mind floated from one blackened memory after another.

Eight years old. Her first day of third grade. She bought home an "A" on her first assignment. Daddy came in. The "A" wasn't good enough for Daddy. He bent down in front of her proud face. He smelled of his usual beer. He ripped the paper from her hands, and shredded it into tiny pieces. She watched his mighty, fearful arm swing down toward her. "Daddy! Don't Daddy!" She began to shrill before the other powerful arm could cover her dainty mouth. Blackness. Carmen violently threw herself across the empty floor of the murky cubicle, trying to shake away all the tragic memories that lurked in her precious mind. "He's gone for good." Carmen said aloud. "I made sure of that."

Imprints of the bedpost could be traced on her head. Her arm contained scratches where the glass from her window had cut her. The walls embodied walls from his fist, and hers. The carpet even had some blood stains- only a sample of Daddy's many explosions. She laid on her back and stared at the ceiling.

Sixteen years old. She had been on the phone with one of her friends. She was out two minuets past curfew the previous night. Daddy came in. This time, she was prepared. Daddy would not hurt her anymore. So many times she was tempted, but so many times her strength could not outweigh his. Nobody was home except Daddy. He approached her, as her always did, with the same fierce face he always had. As he approached, she got brave and pulled the fatal object that she had kept hidden for a long time out from under her pillow where she conveniety kept it. He drew his arm back to smack her across the face when she dared to pull the lethal trigger that ended her suffering. Her mind saw only red, but her blue eyes streamed tears so full of anguish and pain, that they would never be clean again. Daddy will never come in anymore.

Adolescence Speaks

A dull, pounding ache,
An empty space,
Hurting desolate, and alone,
By myself — on my own,
Frightened, scared, crying, dying,
Scarred for life,
Shivering, trembling, cold,
Striking, powerful — BOLD,
Running, hiding, stopping, fighting,
Haunted in sleep,
Yells, screams, profanity,
A struggle for sanity,
Please — don't go, stay,
NO! Leave me alone — go away,
Fighting a battle,
Losing — ever so slowly,
Ticking, ticking — silently,
A bomb ready to blow,
Lost and lonely,
Wandering aimlessly,
Slipping, slipping — losing peace of mind,
Come back — PLEASE...
Begging, pleading,
Sad, so sad,
Alone again,
This time without sanity-
To be my friend.

I Will Always Love You

When I first met you,
you were my dream come true.
Your smile was always there,
to greet me when I was blue.

The times we shared were precious,
I learned a lot from you.
You were the first one that I could say,
"I love you" to.

You made my life so full,
I didn't think it could be.
I have never loved someone so much,
as you alone can see.

One day something happened,
that changed you so much inside.
I wish I could have stopped this,
but I alone had too much pride.

You didn't seem to care,
how much I hurt inside.
You told me that you loved me,
but that's not what I came to find.

I thought your feelings were true,
I wanted them to be.
How can I get over this?
Lord, please help me.

Getting over you was tough,
my love for you was too great
seeing you in front of me,
I didn't know how to behave.

Why you lied to me,
I will never know.
I thought we shared all secrets
through good times and bad.

Now a year has passed,
it seems that my feelings must part.
So I would like to take this chance to tell you,
of your special place in my heart.

I will always remember you,
Remember you smile, remember your touch.
These vague memories in my head,
Can sometimes be too much.

If forever should come to an end,
or the sky shoud lose its hue.
-No matter where I may be,
I will always love you.

Saying Goodbye

The moments we spent together,
I thought would last forever.
The days we spent
I thought would never end.
Although you're not here,
the love for you is.
You are a lifetime ago,
and only a memory away.
Too hard to forget,
Too easy to remember.

My love for you still soars like a dove,
Even though you're up above.
You both struggled to live.
And struggled to die
Now I struggle to say Good Bye.
Rest in peace.
